The 2013-14 year promises to be one of high activity, performance, and outcomes.
Following a successful first year, the CoderDojo program continues into the summer 2013 at the Alisal Campus. CoderDojo is a global collaboration providing free and open learning to young people, especially in programming technology. CoderDojo Steinbeck Country is a program of the Steinbeck Innovation Cluster (http://steinbeckinnovation.org/) operated in partnership with the Salinas Public Library and Hartnell College New Media Center. CoderDojo Steinbeck Country is a free computer-coding club run by volunteers and mentors, where young people can learn how to develop websites, web apps, games and more. Our Dojo is a place where coders can show each other what they’re working on, share what they’ve learned, and meet like-minded people.

CoderDojo is now an international phenomenon that started modestly in Cork, Ireland. You can learn more about it and the history of its beginnings at http://coderdojo.com/.
