WorkAbility III Program

Hartnell College

WorkAbility III Works at Hartnell College

The WorkAbility III Program works to meet the exceptional job placement needs of individuals with disabilities. WorkAbility III is a partnership program, between Hartnell College and the California State Department of Rehabilitation, working together to assist students with disabilities reach educational goals and employment.

The spectrum of work related placement varies according to the individual needs of the WorkAbility III student. Internships, volunteer work experience, part-time employment and full-time career employment are all part of WorkAbility III job placement services.

WorkAbility III Works For Students

WorkAbility III has been working at Hartnell College since 1986, helping hundreds of students with disabilities attain employment and independence. To assist students in reaching their career goals WorkAbility III provides a continuum of services including :

- Academic support
- Work based learning
- Job search skills
- Job development
- Employment retention

A Hartnell College course, Counseling 29, Job Hunting Techniques (.5 units) is offered to WorkAbility III students interested in preparing for part-time or full-time employment.

WorkAbility III Works for Employers

WorkAbility III services to employers focus on successful job placement, success from the employer's and employee's prospective. Employer services include: recruitment and advertising; pre-screening of applicants; information on the ADA and accommodation assistance as requested; and after hire follow-up services to facilitate retention.

WorkAbility III hosts an annual, spring employment fair for the college and community. Participating employers have the opportunity to advertise their business and recruit qualified job candidates.
