2	In the beginning, little support material was provided but the agenda was usually supplied at least the day of meeting. Recently, I've noticed that the agenda is being provided a couple of days beforehand.	3/17/2021 6:21 PM
3	The minutes are sent out much earlier than before, and this allows a lot of time to review. Thank you. Agendas are a little inconsistent and having them even on Monday before our Wednesday meetings would be a great improvement.	3/17/2021 3:54 PM

1	Sometimes. There were many times full data or backup was not provided by group or individual seeking approval of a particular software but the group wanted to vote on it as is. The group developed a rubric for review, great idea, but then at times would not follow the rubric.. or allow for a rubric "override" by an IT staff.	3/18/2021 2:33 PM

1	Overall yes, there is much that needs to be improved with this council. There were at times many representatives from the IT department (non-voting members) who had very strong opinions and those opinions seemed to overshadow what other more quiet members thought.	3/18/2021 2:48 PM

1	Having technicians there to play an active role in the meetings greatly helps to understand the technical time required to initiate/execute projects needed. Seeing working beta tests and/or completed programs is 100% helpful in the visualization of project actuation. The friendly atmosphere makes it feel safe to share ideas with welcome.	3/20/2021 5:08 AM
2	The bringing of ideas for software/hardware adoption, concerns related to technology, etc. is good to discuss in a large setting with various consituencies.	3/18/2021 2:48 PM
3	Data and explanation.	3/17/2021 6:46 PM
4	The Council is run in a very open fashion. Everyone has a chance to speak, add input, or contribute to the agenda. No one person or personality dominates the discussions or business.	3/17/2021 4:57 PM

Q21 Use the space below to provide recommendations for improving the effectiveness of the Council.

Answered: 3 Skipped: 5

#	RESPONSES	DATE
1	Improve response time between Council session meetings - text, email, other media At times, student approved activities within the context of technology had slow or unmet turnaround time during peripheral requests outside the purview of the meetings Having one person with the unique role of reading/replying to emails with little or no other duties will ensure/expedite greater communication, detailed insights of need, and project completion. Seeing the projects (more often) through a visual lifeline -- with milestones from inception to completion -- will help to guarantee the efficiency of time taken to create them and offer the opportunity to reduce redesign. Example: visual whiteboard of initial project concept, pseudo code, working beta, final design Example: powerpoint screen share of agenda items, utilize the annotation tools to add input from participants -- it might seem like extra preparation work, but a strong visual presentation with annotated notes during meetings will help reduce confusion, increase item focus, and optimize usage of time and reduce note-taking hurdles while taking the minutes of the meeting.	3/20/2021 5:08 AM
2	There needs to be greater boundaries around allowing IT staff to come in to try to press their issue or agenda. There have been several times where it has been awkward to listen to IT staff try and pin their bosses down to make a decision or speak on a department issues, in front of the rest of the council. There needs to be greater control in keeping to CAMPUS WIDE conversations around IT.	3/18/2021 2:48 PM
3	Deciphering data and explanations. ex. A running list of 3 letter adjectives, one can refer to with out having to interrupt the meeting flow.	3/17/2021 6:46 PM
